COMMENTS

AVIATION - Duty of Aviation Safety Inspectors and Designated Flight Examiners - In conducting a flight test, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) safety inspector was the director of the flight and crew. The inspector had a duty to direct the test with due regard for the safety of the flight for purposes of a negligence claim under Texas law, notwithstanding the facts that the pilot-applicant qualified as "pilot in command" for purposes of the test flight and that the copilot or safety pilot was to back up the pilot applicant if she erred. *Hayes v.
